RADIOACTIVE WASTES The Questions Multiply

DR. GORDON EDWARDS

CANADIAN COALITION FOR NUCLEAR RESPONSIBILITY

In Thunder Bay, the final stop of his northern tour

Dr. Gordon Edwards is a retired professor of mathematics and science and serves as an expert advisor on nuclear issues. One of his many strengths is his ability to communicate with community members on the realities of radioactive risks, including the risks of nuclear waste transportation and burial. The Nuclear Waste Management Organization is studying an area between Ignace and Dryden as one of two candidate sites for the processing and burial of all of Canada's high-level nuclear waste.

RADIOACTIVE WASTES
The Questions Multiply

Details: environmentnorth.ca

Will the storage canisters last 1,000 years? 100,000 years? Will water become contaminated? Will the site be accidentally uncovered? Can a transportation accident be safely managed? Could the waste be made non-toxic or be useful in the future? Do we have other choices? Who should decide?...
